GOOD HALIBUT OUTLOOK.

But Capt. McDonald Found No Squid on Quero Bank.

Capt. Daniel McDonald of sch. Squanto, which arrived at Boston yesterday with a fare of fresh halibut, reports that there seems to be a good prospect for halibut on Quero Bank and that he looks for some good trips to be caught there this fall and winter. There seemed to be quite a lot of fish, but there was not a sign of bait, he not being able to jig a squid during the whole trip. All he had to fish with was some salted alewives which he took when he started out. As it was, he picked up 25,000 pounds of fish, and believes that with squid he would have got a fine fare.

Struck a Few Squid on Grand Bank.

Capt. James McHenry of sch. Theodore Roosevelt reports speaking sch. S. P. Willard, a salt banker of this port, on Grand Bank. The vessel had wet her salt and scoured 40 hogsheds more and was using that. Capt. Wharton of the Willard reported finding no squid on the bank and was fishing on gurry, catching what he could, and was going to try and use the balance of his salt before coming home. The night before the Roosevelt left for home, the crew of the Willard jigged 20 squid to a man, the first they had found, and baited up and set with these as the Roosevelt left her company.

KING OF SWORDFISH.

One Weighing 860 Pounds Killed at Arichat.

The Sydney Record of recent date says:

"An immense swordfish, weighing 889 pounds, was killed by a party of fishermen at Arichat, on Friday. The fish was taken ashore and forwarded to the Exhibition at Halifax. It was the largest specimen of the kind ever seen around that part of the coast the usual run of the fish weighing only about 300 pounds. The sword of the fish captured on Friday, which appeared to be half broken off, measured three feet and a half, while the tail measured forty inches across.

As far as known, this fish rather lays over any of its species ever captured in these waters.

Swordfish weighing over 600 pounds have been landed at our ports, the largest remembered being one at Boothbay Harbor which weighed 749 pounds. This one captured at Arichat must be the king of all swordfish.

Work of Sch. Grampus.

Reliable information reaches us from the West Coast the United States Fish Commissions schooner Grampus is conducting an exhaustive inquiry into the herring fishery there, and also complaints by Yankee shippers that our custom authorities deal harshly with them. Some two months ago the Gloucester fishing interests sent a delegation to President Roosevelt at Washington to urge that measures be taken to protect American fishermen to the exercise of their treaty rights on our West Coast, and the mission of the Grampus is believed to be the outcome of this step on their part.—St. John's, N. F., Herald.

Large Herring Scarce.

The catches of large herring at Grand Manan the past week have been very scarce. A few were taken at South Head, but the weirs at Grand Harbor, Seal Cove and Long Island caught plenty of small herring, the most of which were too small for smoking. Hake fishing off Swallow Tail light, and the North Channel for the week has been fair, and boats averaged from four to five quintals per day. No cod or pollock was reported to date, but dog fish were in large quantities, the latter part of the week.

Dogfish Plentiful.

Reports from Scaterie say that dogfish are very plentiful. There were some herring about there last week but it was impossible to set nets on account of the dogfish.

Salt Bark Chartered.

The salt bark Jura, which sailed this morning, has gone to Ship Harbor, N. S., to load cels for Europe.

Caught Five Codfish.

Mr. J. Sidney Poole, who lays undoubted claim to being the champion tautog fisherman in these parts, did the unusual thing by catching five deep water large codfish while fishing from the rocks at Cap Head yesterday.
